Believe that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and that it is wise to take a good medicine before you are sick in bed, and thus save long illness and expense. Neither of us were so sick, but we had do heavy headaches, a little excitation tired, our stomachs and our appetite were very poor. So we began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and the effect was like infactory, restoring us to perfect health and preventing, I believe, severe sickness and doctor's bills. I advise all not feeling well to take

GOVERNOR WAITE OF COLORADO.

Something About the Silver State's Chief Officer—Fond of Talking Calamity.

Denver, July 24.—Death, Hunger, War, and

DENVER, July 10.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Republican governor-elect of Colorado was a life-long friend of the late gentleman living in the mining camp of Aspen, and known as a man with a hobby, or many absurd notions. His son-in-law, Mr. B. Clark Wheeler, prominent in the Republican party in the State, who is also a resident of Aspen, was often heard to express opinions of his father-in-law decidedly uncomplimentary. Wheeler and Waite have never succeeded in getting on together, and no cordiality existed between them. Waite for some time ran a newspaper in Aspen called the views and various ideas of political economy. When the Farmers' Alliance movement was raging in Kansas, Walte in the mountain cabin was giving utterance to similar views and gathering a following of malcontents from the improvident class. When in May of that year he was in the city of Topeka, he was invited to take part in a State mass meeting of Silver Leaguers. Walte was urged to lead the Asper delegation. He was placed on the Committee of Resolutions, and in that capacity had an opportunity to incorporate some of his long cherished ideas into the platform of the party.

Later a State Convention of the embryo Populist party was held in Denver, and the Asper delegation put forth Walte as their candidate for governor. The Convention was asked to select a candidate for governor whom the a personal examination of their conduct and alleged misdeeds. Being satisfied that something was wrong in those offices, he publicly requested their resignation. The officials resisted and declared they would seek protection from the courts. But the Governor is a headstrong man, and he calmly made new appointments and called upon the police to oust the first ones named, and this was done.

originals in the State penitentiary have succeeded in so working upon his tender feelings that he has agreed to release all the prisoners, within a week after his release, had any of them been sentenced to the State penitentiary for a crime punishable by a term in the penitentiary. A reporter broached the matter of pardons to Governor White, and he replied: "I have no pardon to be given. I am not a politician. I am condemned by the best citizens of this State. The Governor blundered; and I will not be the man to make the penitentiary a prison for life." "I want to go," he said.

Gov. White is opposed to capital punishment, and is presumed that the two men under sentence of death for murder will receive executive clemency. His views on topics of the day are given in the following editorial character. He was an Abolitionist in early days, a Greenbacker in later times, and one of the most ardent advocates of the tariff. He is opposed to monopolies, and favors every

I am not a theorist," he said recently in an interview. "I am a practical man, and I am a practical legislator. This silver issue is now the most momentous one ever brought before the Legislature. If we do not immediately remonetize this country, we will have a disaster that will rear sounder the very foundations of our Government. Our banks, our institutions totter, and millions will starve for lack of work to do." This is but a sample of the forcefulness of the utterances Colorado's Governor makes.

David H. Wylie was born and educated in Jamestown, N. Y. In 1849, when he was 20 years of age, he came to the Territory of Pennsylvania, removing to Fond du Lac, Wis. where, in 1857, he was sent to the Legislature. He was a member of the House of Representatives on the slavery question made him unpopular there, and it was plainly hinted to him that he should leave the Territory.

He returned to Jamestown, where he edited the Chautauque Democrat, a rabid Republican paper. He was elected to the Kansas Legislature and was elected member of the Legislature from Larned. It was his vote that elected In-that this was the case, and Waite has often said which was due, he said, to "indignations of the gods." Aspen in 1881, after a particularly praecifying law, Waite is quite successful. He is a man of the age of being terribly in earnest, and thought, and voice or gesture, can say most sensational things, and he is a man of the age of painting dark pictures of the future. All these things are due, in his opinion, to the evil influence of the two great political parties.

From the St. Louis Republic.

This month, so far, has averaged one degree ahead of the normal temperature. When folk think this is warm summer weather, however, they had better look at the record. This weather is the coldest yet.

1881. Then we had sixty-six days on which it was over 90°. On May 1 of that year it was 90°. In the other summer months it was as bad nearly every day. On Sept. 3, July 5, and Aug. 3 it was over 100°, and on July 10 it was 104°. Aug. 12 103.4°, and Sept. 5 100.5°. The record of Aug. 12, 1881, stands at the head of the list. The hottest it has been this year is 104.5°, and only on twenty-three days in the past eighteen years has the thermometer climbed higher. The present three days will be the hottest in succession ever known, as it is usual to have a
